Summary of Actions

A regular meeting of the Board of Nursing was held January 27-28, 2011, in Austin. The following is a summary of Board actions taken during this meeting.

In the February 11, 2011, issue of the Texas Register, the Texas Board of Nursing (Board) proposed amendments to Chapter 217, Licensure, Peer Assistance and Practice, §217.4 relating to Requirements for Initial Licensure by Examination for Nurses Who Graduate from Nursing Education Programs Outside of United States' Jurisdiction. These amendments were proposed under the Occupations Code §§301.251, 301.252, and 301.151 and were necessary to specify an exception to the Board's licensure requirements for qualified international nurse applicants. No comments were received and amendments to Chapter 217 were published as adopted in the April 1, 2011, issue of the Texas Register to be effective April 4, 2011. Adopted §217.4(a)(1)(C) requires a licensed vocational nurse applicant to achieve an approved score on an English proficiency test acceptable to the Board, unless a substantial portion of the applicant's nursing program of study, as determined by the Board, was conducted in English. Adopted §217.4(a)(2)(E) requires a registered nurse applicant to provide a Credential Evaluation Service Full Education Course-by-Course Report from the Commission on Graduates of Foreign Nursing Schools (CGFNS), Educational Records Evaluation Service (ERES), or the International Education Research Foundation (IERF) and an English proficiency test acceptable to the Board, or the equivalent which verifies that the applicant has achieved an approved score on an English proficiency test acceptable to the Board, unless a substantial portion of the applicant's nursing program of study, as determined by the Board, was conducted in English.

In the February 25, 2011, issue of the Texas Register, the Board proposed an amendment to Chapter 213, Practice and Procedure, §213.33 relating to Factors Considered for Imposition of Penalties/Sanctions. This amendment was proposed under the Occupations Code §§301.452, 301.453, and 301.151 and formalizes the Board's historical practice regarding default cases. No comments were received and the amendment to Chapter 213 was published as adopted in the April 15, 2011, issue of the Texas Register to be effective April 18, 2011. Adopted §213.33(m) states that, notwithstanding any other provision herein, a person's failure to appear in person or by attorney on the day and at the time set for hearing in a contested case shall entitle the Board to revoke the person's license.

Advanced Practice Registered Nurse Certification Audit Suspended

Due to budget constraints and limited available resources, the Board is suspending the Certification Audit for Advanced Practice Registered Nurses (APRNs). While conducting this survey, it was discovered the vast majority of APRNs were certified and in compliance. Staff audited 6,000 APRNs; less than one percent did not respond to the audit and far fewer were out of compliance with their certification. Staff found a large number of APRNs, although exempt from certification, had maintained APRN certification.

Advanced Practice Nursing Advisory Committee Update

The Advanced Practice Nursing Advisory Committee (APNAC) met on March 28, 2011, in Austin to discuss its charge from the Board regarding the ability of APRNs to perform physical and psychological evaluations under Texas Occupations Code, § 301.4521 and Board Rules and guidelines. Dr. John Lehman, clinical psychologist, provided a presentation on the psychological evaluations most often requested by the Board and provided information regarding the testing that is typically done as part of those evaluations. The committee is planning to meet again in the future to continue discussion on this topic.

The article below includes excerpts from: "Nurse Licensure Compact - Sharing the Realities", by Joey Ridenour, RN, MN, FAAN, Executive Director of the Arizona State Board of Nursing, which appeared in the December, 2010 issue of the Arizona State Board of Nursing Regulatory Journal.

The Nurse Licensure Compact: Myths & Facts

Source: www.allnurses.com (Blog: NLC)

Myth 1: A nurse who moves to another state with the intent to have a new primary state of residence (PSOR) does not need to declare the new state residence until the license from the prior state is about to expire.

Fact: If a nurse changes permanent residence from one party state to another party state/Texas (such as applying for a new Texas driver's license, paying federal income taxes and changing voter registration to Texas) then the nurse must relinquish licensure in the previous state of residence and apply for licensure in the new home state/Texas. The date of nurse licensure expiration is not the "trigger" date to declare a new primary state of residence.

Myth 2: A nurse who has a license in any compact state but has NOT declared primary residency in a compact state, has a multistate privilege to work in any compact state.

Fact: If you hold a license in a compact state such as Texas, but do not declare that state as your primary state of residence, the license is a single state license. The nurse must meet the licensure criteria of the compact state in order to obtain and retain multistate licensure recognition (MSR) privileges on the license.

Myth 3: Employers may request that a nurse working in a compact state on a privilege obtain a license in the party state "to make sure he/she is lawfully licensed."

Fact: The NLC laws explicitly allow a nurse who declares a primary state of residence in a compact state to hold ONE license in the nurse's primary state of residence and practice on the privilege in all other compact party states. The 24 compact states are not allowed to issue more than one license to anyone who has declared a compact state as their primary state of residence based on the state compact laws.

Myth 4: Nurses in compact states must apply for the "added feature" of a multistate privilege after the state implements the NLC.

Fact: If a nurse holds an unrestricted license in a compact state and has declared the state as the primary state of residence, the license is a multistate privilege for all who are eligible and is not a separate "added feature" of the application process.

Myth 5: The NLC is about 24 states that have "compact" together to allow nurses in those states to work without having to get a new license in the other state but always contact the party state board of nursing because they may require "other" paperwork.

Fact: Employers need to verify that the nurse has an unrestricted license in the primary state of residence and has multistate privileges to work in a party state. The compact state boards of nursing do not have "other" paperwork required or need to be notified that the nurse is working on a compact privilege prior to being employed.

TPAPN Offers Extraordinary Volunteer Opportunity

The Texas Peer Assistance Program for Nurses (TPAPN) provides an opportunity to volunteer with the program to help nurses in need in a direct way. Nurses are not immune to chemical dependency or mental illness. To encourage nurses to seek help, TPAPN was created as a non-punitive, confidential, and voluntary alternative to reporting RNs and LVNs to the Texas Board of Nursing. Emily Butcher-Ortiz, RN, a TPAPN nurse advocate for the last 11 years, and TPAPN program director Mike Van Doren, MSN, RN, CARN, share the positive experience of being a nurse advocate in the co-written article below.

My preceptorship as a new graduate registered nurse (RN) was brutal. Still stinging from my first weeks of work, I received a copy of the Texas Board of Nursing newsletter. At the bottom of the page was an ad that said, "Nurses helping Nurses". Sounded, to me, like a novel idea. Off to Austin I went for Advocate training. I came home from that trip with the name of my first participant in my purse.

I have had largely pleasant experiences in my years as an advocate. There have been many more successes than failures. Being an advocate is rewarding, and interesting. However, it is also time consuming. I came to a point where I re-examined my priorities. TPAPN fell off my list. I was no longer the only advocate in the area. One of my participants was now an advocate. Even better, one of her participants completed the program, and also became an advocate.

Shortly after this decision, I was reminded of the importance of the program. For an important family celebration, my sixteen year old son asked to bring a girl to the event. It was obviously important to him, and I consented.

I knew we were in trouble by the time we got to the restaurant. She was beautiful and charming, too. My son was obviously smitten. I began to ask about her future plans. College? Career planning? The girl sitting beside my precious boy told me that she was going to be a nurse. A nurse? She didn't look like a nurse. Not to me.

So I asked her why she wanted to be a nurse? My mom is a nurse, she replied. My mom is a nurse, and she is my hero. Her mother had always come through for her family. She took care of people at work and usually worked long, hard hours, then came home to take care of her children. I tried to make amends for my previous opinions of her. I told her I was a nurse as well and asked for her mother's name. She told me, and time stood very still.

I knew her mother. I first saw her name on a piece of paper I tucked in my purse many years ago in Austin. Her mother, her hero, was one of my early TPAPN participants. At the time, she didn't look like a hero. She was late to our meeting at the local coffee shop. She was obviously emotional, and just completing the paperwork was a chore. I remember her doing better, getting it together, calling me less. She completed the program. We lost touch. I know I don't get credit for her sobriety. She had a program, a sponsor, a case manager, and a support system. I just helped a little with the structure. In this true success story though, even helping in a small way was an honor.

After this happened, I made it to the TPAPN workshop after all. Currently about 200 nurses support their peers through recovery and return to nursing practice across the state of Texas. Between January 1 and March 22 of this year, approximately 87 new participants were placed with advocates.

Nurses in recovery for substance abuse and certain psychiatric disorders need and deserve a chance to prove that they can get better, and so can their practice. For more information on becoming a nurse advocate, visit www.tpapn.org. Your license must be unencumbered to be an advocate.

The next advocate training workshop (free to all new and active advocates) will be held in Round Rock on October 14 and 15, 2011. For questions about advocacy call TPAPN at 1-800-288-5528 or email: tpapn@texasnurses.org.

Nurses On Guard – Best Practice in Patient Safety

Social Media: How Nurses Can Protect Their Patients' Privacy

Human beings, by nature, are social and desire to connect with each other on a regular basis. This connection occurs through communication and is how individuals establish relationships with one another. Nurses learn early in their professional careers that establishing appropriate nurse-patient relationships enhances the quality of care they can provide to their patients.

Increasingly, nurses are turning to social media for networking tools as a way to communicate. Nurses are creating blogs and wikis, posting pictures or stories on Facebook, MySpace or LinkedIn, and following each other on Twitter. These venues of communication have become a way of connecting with colleagues to unravel the complicated nursing practice situations they encounter. Nursing is a stressful profession and nurses learn the importance of sharing stories as a way of reflecting or debriefing following a difficult and emotionally charged event.¹ Nurses must have an avenue in which to reflect or debrief in order to evaluate situations, determine lessons learned and formulate future courses of action. While debriefing is a means of reflecting and is essential to professional growth and development, sharing patients' private health information must be in compliance with legal and ethical requirements. A recent phenomenon in nursing literature are nurses who use social networking sites to discuss their patients which can lead to professional boundary violations.

Hader and Brown (2010) recommended that nurses be mindful of the patient privacy laws and described how social media can violate professional boundaries.^{2,6} The Texas Board of Nursing (BON) (2005) defines professional boundaries as "the appropriate limits which should be established by the nurse in the nurse-client relationship due to the nurse's power and the patient's vulnerability. Refers to the provision of nursing services within the limits of the nurse-client relationship which promote the client's dignity, independence and best interests and refrain from inappropriate involvement in the client's personal relation- *ships and or the obtaining of the nurse's personal gain at the client's expense."*³

How do nurses violate professional boundaries and breach patient confidentiality using social media platforms?

A professional boundary violation, for example, can occur when a nurse posts a picture and the outcome of a surgical procedure for the patient he or she cared for that day on his or her Facebook page. This type of behavior is a breach of patient confidentiality because protected health information was released and posted in a public space.

Another example is a newly licensed nurse who assists her first laboring patient in delivery. In her excitement, the nurse posts on Facebook, the date, time, and a chronology of the labor and delivery events including pictures of the nurse holding the patient's baby. The nurse's social media profile on Facebook includes the name and location of the hospital, the nurse's position at the hospital, and the shift the nurse works. The nurse's intent was to debrief and share this important experience in her professional life with her former classmates and friends. Unfortunately, this nurse shared too much information that could identify the patient, violate privacy laws, and jeopardize the nurse's career.

How does a nurse maintain professional boundaries and the integrity of the nurse-patient relationship, without violating patient confidentiality laws?

Nurses, Employers and Nursing Faculty should:

- Be aware of the importance of self-expression in professional development
- Create safe and secure forums to debrief and reflect with colleagues
- Become familiar with new technology and design trainings aimed at ensuring privacy
- Know the confidentiality laws and understand when potential professional boundary violations could occur

- Develop policies and procedures that will address compliance and ethical behavior with new technology
- Create guidelines that will inform nurses of the legal limits of self-expression online

It is a small world, thanks in part to the ability to electronically connect and communicate with anyone at anytime. Nurses can talk about work with family and friends; however, patient information is private and should remain at work and not be posted on social media sites. Nurses on guard follow the standard of nursing practice and "respect the client's right to privacy by protecting confidential information unless required or allowed by law to disclose the information".⁴ The National Council of State Boards of Nursing, in its Professional Boundaries brochure, discusses how nurses can safeguard the nurse-patient relationship from possible boundary violations.⁵
